KEEPER OF BOARDING HOUSE DEAD; WIDELY KNOWN RACE DRIVER HELD

Quarrel Over Price of Meals
Reported to Have Caused Cutting

FRED JAMISON UNDER ARREST

An unfortunate tragedy at the Washington Fair grounds at Arden Friday evening resulted in the death of Frank M. Wolf, aged 59 years, proprietor of the boarding house maintained there, and the detention of Fred Jamison, one of the country's most noted race horse drivers, pending a complete investigation being made by officers.

Wolf bled to death. During a quarrel and scuffle between Wolf and Jamison a knife was drawn and a wound inflicted in Wolf's left leg, the femoral artery being cut and the femoral vein entirely severed.

When informed by Dr. L. D. Sargent, who was the first to reach the Arden grounds, that Wolf had died, Jamison immediately made preparations for going to Washington and giving himself up to District Attorney I. W. Baum, which he did.

A complete statement of the tragic occurrence was made by Jamison. Between 5:30 and 6 o'clock he said, he met Wolf as the latter was going to the boarding house, the spot of their meeting being near the residence occupied by the Jamison family. Claiming that he was not receiving enough, Wolf had raised the price of boarding and given notice to the trainers and their men Friday morning. Wishing to discuss the matter, Jamison accosted Wolf.

Jamison said that he told Wolf that it would be all right for him to raise the price of board per week but that he must serve better meals, as the men were complaining. This angered Wolf. Words were exchanged and then Wolf drew the knife, said Jamison. Seizing Wolf by the arm, Jamison told him to put the knife away. But thoroughly angered, Wolf continued to be aggressive and started toward him with the knife. Then Jamison said they scuffled and it was during this tussling that the wound was inflicted.

In what were almost his dying words, Wolf told his daughter, Martha, aged about 22 years, that Jamison had inflicted the wound that caused his death. Miss Wolf was waiting on table, when she first discovered that the trouble had occurred. She said Friday night that she was standing by a window of the hotel looking down on the grounds and saw her father wave his arms as though beckoning. Her father having been in feeble health for some months suffering from heart trouble, she immediately left the boarding house and hurried to him.

"You can't do anything for me, the artery in my leg has been cut," was the statement Miss Wolf said her father made to her as she reached his side. She questioned him as to who had done it and he said it was Jamison.

Miss Wolf stated that she saw Jamison standing some distance from her father and watching the latter as he started for the house after the trouble. Jamison, she said, was standing on the steps leading to his home as she reached her father. Noticing that her father was bleeding, she

FLAG ETIQUETTE

These days when all are anxious to show their respect for the Stars and Stripes, some carelessness has been observed in the manner in which the flag is publicly displayed. The etiquette of the flag follows:

It should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset or in stormy weather.

It should always be on the tallest and most conspicuous pole, and at the post of honor at the right, whether in parade or flung from a stationary standard. No other flag should be on the same pole.

When it passes in parade or is being lowered at sunset, the spectator should stand at attention with uncovered head.

When used as an altar covering, the union should be at the right, as you face the altar, and nothing should be placed on the flag except the Bible.

FIRE CAUSED BY EXPLOSION

Four Belle Vernon Business Places Destroyed at Early Hour

INVESTIGATIONS BEING MADE

Fire due to a mysterious explosion destroyed four business places on State street, Belle Vernon and seriously damaged adjoining buildings this morning after 1 o'clock. Places destroyed were the Monroe photograph gallery and living apartments, the Ventura fruit stand, an Italian news stand, with living apartments and McFall's cleaning establishment. Wehr's bakery and the flat over the bakery were badly damaged. The total loss would hardly be under $5,000.

The blaze was discovered at 1:10 o'clock and the alarm turned in. No sooner had the Belle Vernon fire department arrived on the scene and calls for aid were sent to Charleroi and Monessen, both departments responding. They spent their time in controlling the worst of the fire, while the Belle Vernon department centered its attention on saving the Wehr bakery and other adjoining buildings. Investigations are being made into the cause of the explosion causing the fire.

PRINCESS BRAVES DANGERS TO VISIT NEAR RELATIVES

Nicolls, her mother. The princess married the Hungarian prince, whom she met while touring Europe. A third son is about to enter the British navy as an officer.

The term has a new significance in this country now. These American sailors are spelling it by wig-wag signal as though to forecast the result of the great war since the United States entered it. They are ready to fight for victory on the battleship in the background.

The police are keeping a tab on aliens in the city. They are watching for any signs of illegal activity and are prepared to take action if necessary.

Another thing that the police are watching is war arguments. Such are illegal and the police are under strict instructions to make arrests promptly. Several suspected of being sympathizers of countries with whom the United States is at odds are being closely watched.

A HAPPY THOUGHT

No sooner had the gardening movement been firmly established as a matter of patriotism and economy in the nation, than schools began to take it up, with the results that in some localities special provisions have been made for placing the school children at work in the gardens.

Here at last we have a happy solution of problems that long have been bothering us. And the remedy is as simple as that. We have spent a lot of time and printer's ink in trying to discover the proper method of teaching agriculture in the rural schools and of finding some means of instructing city lads and lasses in the ways of economy. With one stroke we have the whole thing done.
Veritable vacant lots are to be the asking for gardening purposes. They can readily be placed at the disposal of the school pupils who profess a desire to cultivate them.
Vast quantities of garden truck will be raised in instruction given in economy and instruction given in intensive cultivation.

EXPLANATION, ECONOMY

In news dispatches emanating from Washington, it appears that among the war measures may be one of prohibition of the liquor traffic. Already the business has been hard hit during the progress of the great war in Europe, and this American movement may put a finishing touch to it.
Russia was among the first to eliminate the liquor traffic, prohibitory measures being adopted against the sale of vodka by the czar. In turn other countries took it up and if they didn't prohibit altogether the liquor traffic, they limited its sale.
It has been everywhere. This is the reason now given by the National Defense Council in Washington, the moral side of the question not being given attention. The argument is that through the prohibition of the liquor traffic, 100,000,000 bushels of grain, now used annually in the manufacture of beer and whiskey, can be saved for food.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

NAMES IN THE NAVY

The petulant query—"what's in a name?" evokes a pertinent rejoinder when it comes to names for our naval vessels. It has been the custom to give the names of States to our armored cruisers, the names of naval heroes being used for smaller vessels. The Kearsarge is the one notable exception where an historic name has been conferred on a battleship. The old cruiser New York was rechristened the Saratoga and a gunboat bore the name of the famous Ranger.

The addition of the new class of first-line vessels, the battle cruisers, offers opportunity to remedy the fail-ture to honor the historic ships of other days and the decision to name them for the famous frigates of the first American navy will serve to perpetuate the memory of this splendid fighting ships. The Constitution,
"Old Ironsides," is preserved at preserved at Charleston Navy Yard, the Constellation at Newport. These veterans of the sea will still be affectionately remembered as the "Old Constitutional" and the "Old Constellation" of imperishable glory, but the bestowal of their names on two of the new battle cruisers will inspire their crews to emulation of the deeds of the men of "Old Ironsides" who, under Captain Hull vanquished the Guerriere, or who, under Captain Rainbow, defeated the Java and Truxton's brave sailors who fought the insurgent and La Vengeance from the decks of the flag-inspired Constitution. Macdonough's gallant flagship or Lake Champlain will be more remembered by the battle cruiser than by the obsolete New York that was which is now to be renamed the Rochester. Paul Jones' Enterprise will be better replaced in the first fighting line than as a gunboat while Johnson's Lexington merits similar honor.

Many other names, like the Chesapeake, will suggest themselves as worthy, but in the incomparable navy we have set out to build there will be opportunities to remember them.

The navy and the Nation will applaud this tribute to the proud record of the dauntless ships which carried our flag to victory in the dawn of the Republic.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Now is the time to follow the flag,
no matter where it goes.

The legislatures long since have lost track of the laws they have made.

The day is coming when the person who doesn't believe in advertising will be the one just buried.

We haven't heard a thing about German food supplies since war was declared.

Any book agent knows when a man starts tapping the desk with his fingers, it is time to "up and get."

French wine makers are experimenting with ultra-violet rays for aging the wines. Since they say ultra violet rays are rather lively, they ought to afford the gray hairs necessary.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

An employee of a real estate office had been sent by the house agents to take an inventory of a mansion in their hands. He was so long about the task that at last the woman of the house went to see what was taking place. She found the man slumbering sweetly on a sofa with an empty bottle beside him. It was evident, however, that he had made a pathetic attempt to do his work, for in the inventory was written:

"One revolving carpet."

He was a father for the first time, and nothing existed in the world save wife and baby. It was the other morning that, just as he had opened his desk somewhere in the city the phone bell rang.

"You're wanted, sir!" shouted the war time office girl. "A lady."

Rushing to the phone, he grabbed the receiver.

"Yes, dear," he said at once.

"Oh, George, dear, come at once."

He waited to hear no more, flinging down the receiver, he seized his hat and rushed into the street. Within half a minute he was being whirled in a taxi to the suburb where all his hopes were centered, his face was lined with anxiety as he burst into the house and ran upstairs three steps

at a time.

"Here I am, darling!"
"Oh, you're late, George. Baby had his little toe in his mouth, and he looked so pretty. I wanted you to see him."

DANGERS OF A COLD

George McCans, pattern foreman, 120 Thompson Ave., Donora, Pa., says: "A heavy cold settled in my kidneys. A dull pain in my back bothered me most all the time, especially while working. RUMORS OUT OF 6,000 ACRE COAL SALE AT MIDDLETOWN

Rumors of a 6,000 acre coal deal in the West Middletown section have been flying thick and fast the last few days.

Thomas Patterson, of Crafton has had the block, which covers most of Hopewell township and extends into Buffalo township, under option for some time. The options at $100 to $125 an acre are said to have expired April 1. Mr. Patterson has been trying to hold the block together until July 1, it is understood, when if down-right purchase of the coal has not been made, $1 an acre will be paid down to hold the options until fall.

Mr. Patterson was to have drilled tests into the coal, but later had that clause stricken from the option and the tests were not finished. Mr. Patterson states he has sold the entire block to the Hilman-Friend interests of Pittsburg.

CIVIL WAR PRICES PREVAIL HERE NOW

Articles Selling For High Prices Now Sold For Higher Prices in Sixties—For Higher Prices in Sixties—Meat Cheaper Than However

Complaints of the high cost of living have plenty of basis in fact, says Editor L. M. Truxal in the Belle Vernon Enterprise, but it may be some consolation to those who are now paying exorbitant prices to compare their lot with that of their fathers and mothers, who went through a similar experience during the war days of the early 60's for their's was an experience far more strenuous than that now existing.

Our attention was recently called to a little moth-eaten ledger of a small merchant in a town which records the transactions between the merchant and his customers during Civil War days. We learned from the items contained in that old ledger that flour sold for $4.25 per sack, kerosene oil $1.50 per gallon, sugar, 6 pounds for $1.00, calico 20 cents a yard, tea $1.00 per pound, matches 10 cents per box, 30 cents a bar. In the year 1864, the last year of the war, calico jumped to 40 cents a yard, cotton sheeting to 60 cents, cotton ticking to 70 cents, sugar four pounds for $1.00, salt $5.00 a barrel, tea $2.50 per pound and other things of common necessity at similar prices.

From a farmer's point of interest, conditions were still more unfavorable, for while he has to pay the prices above quoted everything he had to sell brought him about half of what he is now receiving. Dressed pork sold at 5 cents per pound, while now it brings 10 to 17 cents on the hoof. Dairy butter sold at 15 cents while now it is about 45 cents. Chickens sold for 12 cents each, while now they go at 30 to 35 cents a pound. Eggs were 10 cents a dozen, while now they are 40 to 50 cents.

We have plenty of trouble now a days in making ends meet, but our fathers had similar trials and a heap harder ones. They emerged from them stronger and braver. Perhaps these which we are now enduring will have a similar disciplinary and salutary effect.

COMPENSATION APPEAL IS DISMISSED BY THE COURT

In the suit of Elizabeth Benish against the Union Coal & Coke company, an appeal from the decision of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Pennsylvania, the court has handed down its opinion, dismissing the appeal. The only question argued before the court was that the referee had erred in what the appellant calls his seventh conclusion of fact, which was "That at the time of the death of said Dan Benish, on July 12, 1916 his widow, Elizabeth Benish, was then actually dependent upon him for support for herself and children. The appellant averred this wasn't supported by evidence. The court says that "Under the plain provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act we think there is no escape from the conclusion that this is an appeal from the findings of the referee and of the compensation board on a question of fact, and that this court is without jurisdiction to review their findings." Mrs. Benish was awarded a total of $5,144.85.

man and woman are accused of having held up a foreigner as the latter was walking a road at the mining town and of having taken about $25 from him. They were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace P. N. Hough and held for court.

WALING PLACED AS GUIDE TO REPAIR WORK ON BROKEN DAM

Preparatory to driving steel piling above the break in dam No. 4, waling, or binding, is being placed on the upper side of cribs as a guide to the piles. Work is progressing on filling the cribs, but water is too high for the two new cribs to be placed.

KEEPER OF BOARDING HOUSE DEAD

stated that Jamison offered a handkerchief to tie about the wound but that she refused it.

Miss Wolf said that for two years there has been trouble about the boarding at the grounds and that sometimes the men and her father were not on speaking terms. They had been for the past two days, she declared.

At the time of the meeting between Jamison and Wolf, the latter was on his way to the boarding house from the store at Arden. In a basket he had bread, eggs, soap, and mail. The contents were not distributed with the exception that one egg was broken.

Two colored men, who were in one of the buildings near by, carried her father to the hotel building, she says. They were the only men in the vicinity, the others all being at the boarding house at the time eating.

Special Officer F. H. Mitchell, who went to Arden to make an investigation, said that there were some eyewitnesses to the trouble. He would not make public any facts he discovered, expecting to present them in court.

Deputy Coroner T. C. Bebout of Washington was called and took charge of the body.

Wolf had been a resident of Washington and vicinity practically his entire life. For a number of years he resided in Jefferson avenue and later at Wolfstown. His wife is in a state of collapse as a result of the tragedy. Besides her, he leaves the following children: Ben. H. Wolf, of Portland, Ore., and Misses Martha, Jane and Minnie and George Wolf all at home.

Jamison is well known in the Monongahela valley, where he has appeared frequently at race meets.

Railroad Manager Rose from Rodman

From rodman to general manager of a great railroad; that is the life-story of Elisha Lee of the Pennsylvania. From the top of a freight he descended to the bottom to begin his climb in life. In 1911 he sprung into prominence when he became assistant to the general manager of the "lines East." In 1914 he was made general superintendent of the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad. It was only a few months ago that he was appointed assistant general manager of the Pennsylvania system. Elisha Lee is one of the men who rose "from the ranks."

INCREASE OFFERED TO DISTRICT MINE WORKERS

Ohio and Western Pennsylvania Operators Offer Advance to Miners. But Illinois and Indiana Are Non-Committal

Considerable progress was made at Friday's sessions of the conference in New York City between the bituminous coal operators of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana and representatives of 225,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America who are seeking an increase in wages. C. E. Maurer of Cleveland representing the Ohio operators and W. E. Field, president of the Pittsburgh Coal and Coke Company representing the western Pennsylvania operators, offered a 10 per cent increase.

The Illinois operators refused any increase, while those from Indiana were non-committal. The increases asked for range from 20 to 23 1-3 per cent. "We know the coal industry is in a healthy and prosperous condition," said John P. White, president of the miners' organization, in addressing the conference. "We should not be driven to adhere to a contract that was made under conditions that are absolutely the reverse of present day conditions."

WATCHMAN EMPLOYED NOW AT SPEERS' CROSSING

In accordance with the decision of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, the Pennsylvania Railroad has placed a watchman at the Speers' crossing where two fatalities occurred on March 6. TONIGHT'S MATCH AT RINK ONE THAT HAS BEEN AWAITED BY BOXERS FOR MANY WEEKS

Harry Greb and Al Rodgers are primed for their ten round bout tonight at the Charleroi skating rink, as one of the biggest pugilistic attractions of the present season. Rodgers arrived in Pittsburgh Friday and spent the day working out and putting on the finishing touches. Greb meanwhile was putting in hard licks for the engagement here, as well as for another engagement he has in Pittsburgh Monday night. A big crowd of fans is expected for the performance, since a decision is anticipated that will settle once for all the rivalry existing between the pair. The meeting is one that has been waiting for months.

The semi final will be fought by Tony Caponi of Pittsburgh and Dag Copic of Donora. In the second argument Joe Demarco of Charleroi and Young Ketchell of Donora will appear and in the opener Kid Dillon and Young Peck will mingle.

SIX-SIDED SNOW CRYSTALS.

That is Nature's Law, but Why It Is So Science Cannot Explain.

Snow crystals obey an immutable law of six. They are six sided jewels or six pointed stars. They never answer to the law of four or five. Snow is crystallized water, and water always crystallizes in six sided forms. Why? No one ever will know. There is no more apparent reason for the sixness of crystallized water than there is for the monoclinic prisms of sugar crystals. Water and sugar and the complex minerals which make the granite rock all follow laws which are utterly unchangeable, but which are, as far as we can see, without any special reason. It is as profitable to speculate why the chlorophyll of vegetation is green and why the blood of animals is red.

The whiteness of the snow is understandable. It is due to the fusion of primary colors scintillating from the countless surfaces of minute crystals. Human science comprehends this. It also comprehends the fact that snow is a poor conductor of heat and thus prevents terrestrial radiation and keeps the earth and the things in the earth snug and warm under the white blanket which is softer and finer than lamb's wool or eiderdown. Science knows why snow is white and why it is beneficent, but it cannot explain the law of six.

It is well that snow cannot be altogether explained. It is one of the earth's most beautiful mysteries. It would lose something in beauty were it to lose all its mystery.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Is Not Difficult to Make a Picture of Yourself as Twins.

In the Woman's Home Companion C. H. Claudy describes the photographic trick of having one person appear twice in the same picture and tells the amateur photographer how to accomplish it.

"What you actually do is this: Cut from a piece of thick, stiff pasteboard a piece which will fit into the inside of the camera and be held in place by the folds of the bellows. It should be fitted in the fold of the bellows which will hold it about an inch or an inch and a half in front of the plate. Its width should be half the plate opening and a trifle more—say one-eighth of an inch.

"Make this piece of cardboard thoroughly black on both sides by dipping it in ink and letting it dry. See that the cardboard is well sealed in the bellows folds so that light does not leak past the joints.

"Pose your subject and proceed to focus so that the image appears on the right side of the ground glass in the camera (left side of the finished picture will be the result). The left side of the ground glass appears blank, because it is kept from exposure by the cardboard. Insert the plate holder, take a picture, put back the slide and remove the plate holder; on no account move the camera, however. Very gently slide the cardboard from the left side to the right, and replace the ground glass. Pose the subject on the opposite side of the center this time. Then replace the plate holder, remove the slide and make a second exposure exactly the same length as the first."

Thrift Axioms.
Nothing waste, nothing want.
Thrift is an antidote against anxiety for the future.

Thrift deals with the present day and plans for the future days.

Thrift acquaints itself with true values and keeps tab on expenditures.

Neither minute gains nor even small losses are underrated by the thrifty.

To postpone to "afternoon" what should be done in the morning is thriftlessness of management.

An Architectural Gem.
Claude Perrault was one of the rare geniuses who turned from the profession of medicine to that of art. He was born in 1613, being the brother of Charles Perrault, the noted barrister, through whose influence he became architect of the Louvre in Paris. The colonnade of this building, which he erected, is regarded as one of the finest creations of its kind of the seventeenth century.

What Tipping Means.
Fourteen thousand six hundred per cent is a pretty high rate of interest. But it's just what you pay when you hand the cloakroom pirate a fifteen for watching your hat for an hour. Do you get us? Well, it's just like this: When you pay 10 cents for the loan of a dollar for a year you pay 10 per cent. But if you pay 10 cents for the loan of a dollar for a day you pay 365 times as high a rate, or 3,650 per cent. It's just the same way with your $3 hat. When you pay 5 cents on it for an hour you are paying the rate of $438 a year, counting only twelve business hours a day. And this is at the rate of 14,600 per cent. Tell this to the cloakroom kid today and get her "comeback." But don't blame us if she's a bit snippy.—Worcester Post.

Pirates and Steamships.
It was the advent of the steamship that finally gave the pirates their death-blow in Malaya. Every schoolboy ought to know the story of the first steamer off Borneo. Some pirate ships saw a steamer in the distance and, observing the smoke from its funnels, thought the ship was on fire and therefore helpless. They gave chase, but they were amazed to see the strange sea beast come up steadily against the wind and vomit fire from its guns. It was generally agreed in polite pirate circles that the white man had played a mean trick upon a successful and honorable body of traders.

Safe.
Miss Fortynod awoke in the middle of the night to find a burglar ransacking her effects. Miss Fortynod did not scream, for she prided herself, among other things, upon her courage.

Pointing to the door with a dramatic gesture, she exclaimed:
"Leave me at once!"
The burglar politely retreated a step and said, "I had no intention of taking you."—New York Times.

Not So Wrong.
A Russian applicant for naturalization papers was asked, "What is the constitution of the United States?"
"Rugged and healthy," he answered.
Of course there is a laugh, but still he said something.—Washington Herald.

A PATRON OF ART.

He Was a Good Bluffer, but De Wint Called His Hand.

Peter de Wint, the English landscape painter, was accustomed each year to have a semiprivate show of his pictures before sending them to the Water Color society's exhibition. On such occasions his friends frequently bought pictures, which, of course, appeared at the public exhibition marked "Sold."

Among the painter's friends was a wealthy man who wanted to appear a patron of art and at the same time to keep his money. He managed this by loudly admiring the paintings already sold. He was always a bit too late to buy the pictures that pleased him most and, having seen them, he could never content himself with less beautiful works.

De Wint at last suspected the man's shrewdly, and when the next show day came round he concluded to test him. After plenty of time had been allowed for De Wint's friends to make their purchases, the rich man arrived. As usual, his eye soon fell on two "perfect gems" marked "Sold." Turning to the artist, he said, "Now, De Wint, those are exactly the things I should like to possess; what a pity they are not to be had."

"My dear sir," said the painter, snapping him on the back, "I knew you would like them, so I put the tickets on them to keep them for you."

A LESSON IN THRIFT.

How a Young Man Can Lay the Foundation of an Old Age Income.

In "The Family's Money" in the American Magazine a father asks his son why he does not increase his income every year in the following manner: "Suppose you save $250 a year, or about $5 a week. You could do that and not suffer. Invest that money in a sound 6 per cent security. During the second year it will earn for you $15, giving you an increase of $125 a month. Add your interest gain to the principal, and at the end of the second year you will have $515 working for you."

"At the close of the fourth year you will have a capital invested of $1,092, which during the fifth year will give you $65, or more than $5 a month. Of course each year is adding to your principal and your income. When the eighth year comes to an end you will possess capital of $2,470, which during the ninth year will earn $148, or more than $12 a month, and that is not an amount to laugh at."

"At the end of the twentieth year you have $9,180, which during the following year will earn $550, or more than $45 a month. When that year closes you will possess capital of practically $10,000, which will give you an income increase of $800 per annum, or $50 a month."

Boys and Girls.
The difference is apparent early. A boy has as much fun in studying a cat as a girl has in hunting for violets. A boy's curiosity is directed to the box; a girl would like to see what is in the top bureau drawer.

A girl can give the impression when away from home that her parents are wealthy; a boy cannot.

A girl is never so young that she will reveal to guests at a party that the spoons are borrowed; a boy child never grows so old that he fails to.

Give a boy a dollar, and he will eat it; give his sister one, and she will wear it.

When brothers fight it is over the larger share of pie. When sisters quarrel one has worn something belonging to the other without asking permission.—Youth's Companion.

A Woman Did It.
A lesson to landlords is this. A woman did it. She wanted the house papered. The landlord talked about the paper shortage and took his rent and went.

The next month when he called he found the house beautifully papered. He was pleased and said so. The woman smiled. She walked to the wall and moved a picture aside. Beneath the picture was a grimy square of the old paper. The woman had papered around every picture in the house. As she paid the month's rent she gave notice that she would move the next month.—Philadelphia North American.

Gratitude!
An unusual form of testamentary gratitude is recorded in the diary of Henry Greville. "A man who had spent much of his time in fishing left a direction in his will that as he had derived much nourishment as well as pleasure from the fish he had caught at Chertsey, it was only fair to the descendants of those fish that he in return should become their food. He therefore desired that his body should be cast into the Thames at Chertsey."—London Tatler.

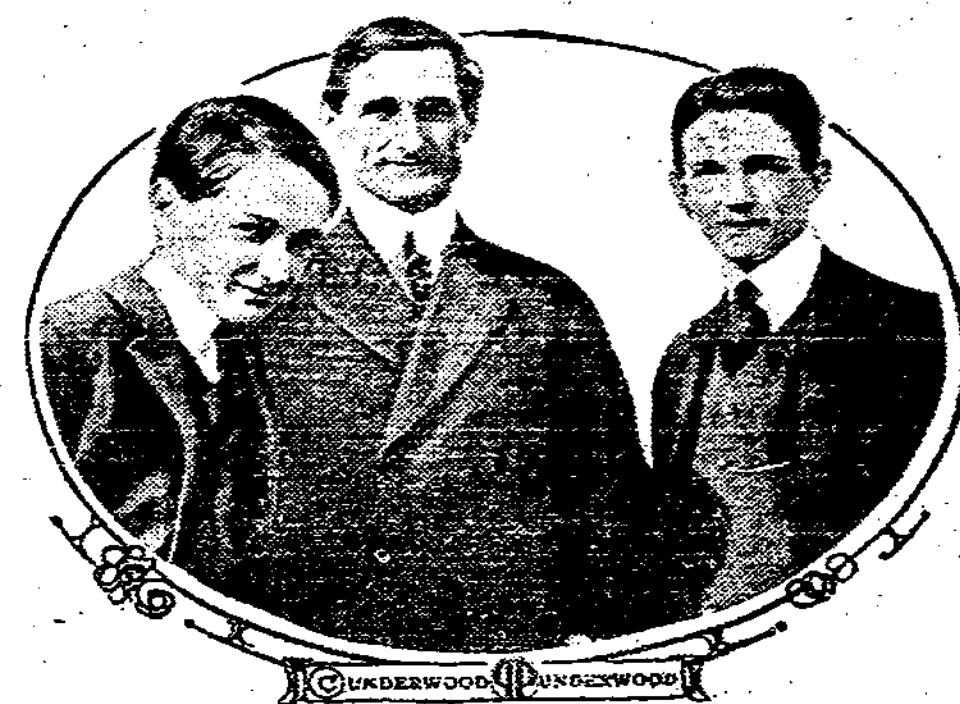

Had to Say Something.
Jack Timid (presumptuously in love with his employer's daughter)—Is Mr. Cashleigh in? Butler—Yes, sir. Jack Timid (horribly disappointed)—Well, I'm glad to hear it. He might catch cold outside—beastly weather. Good night.—Boston Transcript.

A Good Reason.
"Why don't you buy a car, Walker?"
"I will tell you. All my neighbors think I can afford one, and I don't want them to find out that I can't."—Exchange.

Mostly True.
"What is the initiative and referendum?"
"Another name for wives."—Puck.
